Text of Plank.

The Republican party will uphold at all times the authority and integrity of the courts. State and Federal, and will ever insist that their powers to enforce their processes and to protect life, liberty and property shall be preserved inviolate. We believe however, that the rules of procedure in Federal court, with respect to the issuance of a writ of injunction, should be more accurately defined by the statute; that no injunction or temporary restraining order should be issued without notice, except where irreparable injury would result from delay, in which case a speedy hearing thereafter should be granted. parable injury would re-which case a speedy hearing there-ter should be granted.

"It will be granted."
"It will be seen that the plank begins with an unnecessary eulogy of the courts. Nobody is opposed to upholding at all times the authority and integrity of the courts. Nobody is objecting to the enforcement of their processes or to their exercise of their powers to protect life, liberty and property. The plank assumes that somebody is attacking the courts and that the courts are in danger of losing support or of having their powers weakened. There is no attack upon the courts, and there is no thought anywhere of intertering with any legitlimate function of the courts. The Republican convention puts up a man of strew and then proceeds to demolish it, it suspects an unboly assault upon the judiclary and its righteous indignation finds expression in a beastful assertion of its innocence of participation in any such suspected assault. This part of the plank was written to give assurance to the people who are opposed to the laboring man's plea. And now let us proceed to that part of the laboring man. It says.

"We deciare for such amendments of the statutes of procedure in the Federal courts with respect to the use of the writ of injunction as will on the one hand prevent the summary issue of such orders without proper consideration, and on the other will preserve undiminished the power of the courts to enforce their processes, to the end that justice may be done at all times to all parties.
"It will be noticed in this plank the declaration in favor of amendments comes first and the declaration in favor of preserving undiminished the power of the courts to enforce their processes comes afterward. In the plank which was adopted by the convention the declaration in favor of the courts to enforce their processes comes afterward. In the plank which was adopted by the convention the declaration in favor of the courts to enforce their processes shall be preserved. In the plank adopted that in the first draft of the platform the pledge is that the power of the courts to enforce their processes shall be preserved. In the plank adopted this promise is enlarged and elaborated. In the original platform amendments are favored. In the plantorm amendments are favored. In the plantorm amendments are favored. In the original plank the aim of the party was to prevent the summary issue of such orders without proper consideration, whereas in the plank adopted in the convention leaves the subject just as it found it.

"The anti-injunction plank of the Republican platform, as finally adopted, is a transparent fraud. It is possible that the members of the committee were bunked by some trust lawyer—that is the only charitable view that can be taken of it. Those who advocated the plank claimed to be doing it as a concession to the wage earners, and yet if one will read the plank he will see that it is in fact an announcement that the Republican party is unalterably opposed to the laboring man's position. The plank reads as follows: n part as follows

Note the words 'except where irreparable injury would result from delay, in which case a speedy hearing thereafter should be granted. Note the words 'except where irreparable injury would result from delay, and compare this exception with the Federal statute on the subject and you will find that under the law as it now exists the court is not empowered to grant a temporary restraining order except there appears to be darger of irreparable injury from delay. It will be seen that the man who wrote the injunction plank copied the statute almost word for word and made the exception as brond as the statute. If the convention had been frank in the statement of its position it would have quoted the present statute and said that it was in favor of enforcing the law just as it is. It would have said: "Whereas, at present, a court or judge may grant a temporary restraining order if there appears to be danger of irreparable injury from delay, the first of the statute almost word for word and made the exception as position it would have quoted the present statute and said that it was in favor of enforcing the law just as it is. DENNISON, Ohlo, June 21.—Secretary Taff had a narrow escape tonight from being involved by a serious wreck on the Pennsylvania flyer, which was carrying him east. Prompt action of the towerman in a signal station at hird of a mile east of Coshocton, and of the engineer of the flyer, alone averted what might have been a dreadful accident. As the train was speeding along at the rate of fifty miles an hour the piston rod on the frain was present off. Almost instantly the cylinder of the engine was cracked by the unmanageable rod. The train was just approaching a town cast of Coshocton. The operator saw that something serious was wrong and threw down a signal to stop the train.

Secretary Taft and National Committeeman Kellogg entered the dining car and sat down to dinner after the accident occurred without a thought of anything serious in connection with the stopping and delay of the train. The secretary made no comment on the incident when informed of it. The engineer of the locomotive explained that it was merely good luck that

The waiting policy of the speculation was confirmed by the balance of some contending features in the general situation of affairs. Unfavorable weather conditions in a part of the winter wheat belt were taken due notice of, but the epinion of authorities in the grain trade that the promise of the yield was not yet materially prejudiced, served as an off-set.

CAUSED FATAL EXPLOSION

CAUSED FATAL EXPLOSION

PHILADELPHIA, June 21.—Investigation into the cause of the explosion on board the Hamburg-American line steamer Arcadla, in which three persons were killed and a number injured, or Saturday, strongly tends to substantiate the theory that the bursting of a bomb caused the damage. The explosion occurred in hold No. 4, in which the officers and agents of the vessel declare there were neither chemicals nor explosives. An examination of the bulkhead of three-eighths-inch steel, separating No. 4 hold from the coal, shows that it is covered with small indentures as though volleys of ballets had been fired against it. The steel partition was torn loose by the explosion and rolled up like paper, and some of the fire inspectors say that an ordinary gas explosion would not, have caused such a condition. Even the ship's officers, who at first declared the assumption that there was a bomb on board was absurd, today admitted the possibility of such a thing. The theory of the bomb is also the only one that explain the fact that two of those who met death in the explosion were riddled with small holes, apparently made by flying bits of steel and broken halls. A handful of such scrap was gathered up from the torn clothing and around the bodies of the dead men.

Cantillion, who is a professional baseball player, a member of the Des Molnes, lowa, team, and a bedier of Joseph Cantillion, manager of the Washington American league feam, had to have his left eye removed as the result of an accident in Chicago several months ago.
